

GREAT AGRICULTURAL WEALTH OF COUNTY SHOWN IN REPORT

Figures Obtained by Commissioner Tate Show Increase in Acreage Devoted to Agriculture

It is not generally realized that as large amount of agricultural products are raised in this county as are actually produced. County Horticultural Commissioner Tate has just completed survey of the agricultural wealth of the county which shows that the agricultural industry is not neglected here in spite of the great amount of manufacturing done. The report of Commissioner Tate shows a total of 13,392 acres of land in the county devoted to agriculture in the proportion shown below:

Artichokes, 4707; Peas, 1964; Potatoes, 1390; Cabbage, 1107; Cauliflower, 1047; Lettuce, 837; Horse Beans, 742; Sprouts, 384; Green Corn, 286; Tomatoes, 264; Beans (dry), 259; Carrots, 99; Peas (string), 63; Turnips, 95; Spinach, 60; Beets, 23; Onions, 15.

"While the production of fruit is not an important industry," continues the report, "there is a bearing acreage of fruits and berries of 1066, two year plantings of 228 acres, and during 1922, 309 acres were set out. This is commercial planting only.

"The total value of agricultural products of the county, annually, is conservatively placed at $10,000,000, of which cut flowers and ornamental plants value $3,500,000 and artichokes, $2,500,000.

"The area under glass is 97,240 square feet, commercial planting placing San Mateo county in the lead in the state in growing of hot house plants. The famous violets of San Francisco's street markets are grown in this county."

NON-SUIT DENIED

Arguments on motion for non-suit in the case of Attorney Edward F. Treadwell, suing Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Nickel, wealthy residents of Menlo Park, for attorneys fees of $300,000 was denied in the Superior Court at Redwood City yesterday, by Superior Judge Benjamin K. Knight of Santa Cruz.

Motion for the non-suit was entered last Thursday afternoon by Attorney F. D. Madison of Pillsbury Madison & Sutro, counsel for the defense, at the completion of the taking of testimony for Treadwell.

Evidence for the plaintiff was finished with the testimony of various corporation lawyers on the value of such services as are alleged to have been rendered by Attorney Treadwell for Mrs. Nickel in connection with the administration of the estate of her father, the late Henry Miller, head of the firm of Miller & Lux.

The defendants are now making their answers to the suit.

PESCADERO PEBBLES

Miss Poulson and Mr. Gibbs of San Francisco spent Sunday with Dr. and Mrs. C. V. Thompson. Both Miss Poulson and Mr. Gibbs are frequent visitors in Pescadero.

Sportsmen here are making some fine catches of grill and steel-head in tide-water angling. Henry McCormick and Victor Doty have brought in splendid baskets over recent week ends. The streams are somewhat roilly as it is quite to be expected of their turbid condition. of the time of the year.

In last week's news from here our correspondent inadvertently omitted proper comment on the beautiful singing of Mrs. Vierra and the very capable histrionic endeavors of Mrs. Ed Weeks, in their part of the evening's offer of entertainment in connection with what proved to be perhaps the most successful whist party given in those parts for many a day. The work of both Mrs. Vierra and Mrs. Weeks was distinctly professional in character, and it is much to be regretted that something like a dramatic organization is lacking in Pescadero, where ability so marked as in these instances would be called into play with greater regularity, and at the same time be instrumental in creating a more positive cultural atmosphere for every one to enjoy.

Tuesday, the 7th, a regular meeting of the Pescadero Community Center was held in the auditorium. A motion to retain in office all present incumbents was passed, making the list of officers as follows: Chairman, C. J. Cohen; Vice-Chairman, A. T. Weeks; Secretary, Mrs. J. C. McCormick; Treasurer, Mrs. J. C. Williamson; Chairman of the membership committee, Mrs. Frank Williamson.

An anniversary for the treasurer, Mr. J. C. Williamson, to take place in the Center on the eighteenth of the present month is being planned by the executive board. A lively discussion was entered into relative to ways in which the Center might lend support to the high school, and the adolescent youth, and young men of the community by promoting construction of an up-to-date gymnasium.

Rehearsals for the minstrel show to be given on the twenty-first are under way and progressing with great promise. On this evening local talent is expected to set new standards of achievement in the way of entertainment.

Word is going about to the effect that the additional timber land in the Pescadero Creek country is being taken over by the Peterson Lumber Company. This will insure another good season at the mill and will also tend to keep up our population somewhat.

Some eastern people are said to have acquired a tract of fifty acres of the Peninsula Farm Company's land in the neighborhood of Pigeon Point. The near future will probably see great developments along the immediate coast side. It would be difficult to find a section of the county has offers more in the way of beautiful land and sea-scapes than here.

HITCHING POSTS TO BE REMOVED

Another relic of old times in Redwood City is to disappear within the near future. The old iron hitching posts along Main street and Broadway are to be removed by an order of the board of trustees, issued at their meeting last Monday. The posts are now seldom, if ever used, and were regarded by the board as disfigurements of the street.

The hitching post has served its usefulness and like the useful animals for which they were erected are fast becoming a curiosity. It is not so long ago, however, when the hitching post like the square stone which adorned the sidewalk in front of each house served an important part in society. The proposed removal of the old posts has called to mind of the old timers memories of when smart teams were tied along Bridge street and when handcarriage, carriages, surreys and mountaineers' carts surrounded the court house square.

SUPERVISORS HEAR

BRIDGE ASSOCIATION

After months of preliminary work and planning, the Dumbarton Bridge Association, last Monday took their first public step toward the bridging of the bay. A notice of intention to apply for a franchise had previously been published in the Times-Gazette and last Monday President F. K. Towne and Secretary Smith of the association, appeared before the supervisors of the county and presented the following communication:

Redwood City, Cal, Feb. 5, 1923.
Honorable Board of Supervisors of San Mateo County, Court House, Redwood City, Cal.
Gentlemen:

Dumbarton Bridge
Attached please find a copy of "Notice of Intent to Construct," as published by us on behalf of John Lyle Harrington of Kansas City, Mo.

First publication was issued January 27th last in "Times-Gazette" of Redwood City and will be advertised weekly under the present interpretation of the law.

Pending the opinion, however, of the District Attorney and legal advisors appointed by him to interpret the laws governing toll bridge franchises, we must operate as nearly possible according to the present law as written, hence our published "Notice of Intent."

Mr. Ernest E. Howard of the afore-said firm has just visited us again and returned East after definitely deciding on location of the bridge as per blue print submitted and subject to customary procedure.

With preliminary surveys in hand we are authorized by Mr. Howard to state that unless unforeseen difficulties arise that the tolls in the main will be as follows:

For each passenger.....05
For each passenger auto.....10 to 15
For each truck.....10 to 50
Other tolls proportionately reasonable.

Subject to the law arrangements are being made to allow the bridge to become the property of the interested counties for the road districts of the same, free of any cost at the expiration of thirty years or it may be purchased at any time within thirty years by the interested counties or road districts of the same at a price to be agreed upon.

Plans and specifications are now being prepared for the meeting before your Honorable Board in March as set forth in the "Notice of Intent."

We have the honor to be DUMBARTON BRIDGE ASSOCIATION.

By F. K. Towne, President
R. H. K. Smith, Secretary.

Up to the present time the Dumbarton Bridge Association, which numbers among its members some of the most able business men of the state, has avoided publicity and devoted its efforts to actual work on one of the greatest propositions ever offered the people of San Mateo county. The meeting last Monday was characteristic of the program of the association, there were only a few present on account of the bridge matter and all those were there for a definite purpose and with a full understanding of the work before them. The grand stand play seen sometimes on occasions of this sort was absent and one of the greatest moves ever consummated in the county was accomplished without excitement or undue publicity.

LUNCH ROOM CHANGES HANDS

The Peninsula Lunch Room, on Main street at the end of Broadway, has just been taken over by George Genochio, who has been conducting a soft drink place in the next building. The place formerly occupied by Genochio has been taken over by Earl Rush and will be used as an office in connection with his garage and auto agency. He is also making some changes in the place and will soon have a very attractive and comfortable office.

George Genochio is well known in Redwood City and has a host of friends who wish him success in his new undertaking. He is experienced in the line he is undertaking, and has a pleasing personality that will insure him patronage.

BURLINGAME GATES MUST BE REMOVED

At the regular meeting of the County Board of Supervisors last Monday a communication was delivered by the board of trustees of the San Mateo Grammar Schools protesting against the removal of the south-easterly gate of Burlingame from its present site on the Highway to a position on Barriole avenue. Permission had been granted to Burlingame some time ago to move the gate which was considered a menace to travel on the Highway, to Barriole avenue, that position being considered a better place for the gate. The objection of the trustees of the school was based on the proposed position of the gate being a menace to the children going to and leaving the Peninsula Avenue school, as it cut off their view of the road.

G. E. Sanford, representing the California Automobile Association, was present to urge the board to have the gate removed from the highway, as he said it endangered the lives of the motorists who used the highway.

The board on a motion proposed by Supervisor Brown and seconded by Supervisor Francis rescinded the permission it had previously given the City of Burlingame to put the gate on Barriole avenue. It was also decided by the board to have the clerk write to the City of Burlingame and request the gate removed within two weeks and that if the order were not carried out within that time that the county engineer would remove the gate.

SUPERVISORS CONSIDER

WEBB BRIDGE FRANCHISE

In his opening statement to the county board of supervisors at a special meeting held yesterday morning for the purpose of considering the Coyote Point bridge proposition, District Attorney Swart said in substance he was not with the board in giving away public's rights. Swart said that, as District Attorney, he had no right to advise the board on anything but the legal aspect of the matter, but as a taxpayer of the county, he was opposed to the board giving the county's rights to private individuals.

Attorney Hall C. Ross characterized the granting of a franchise like the one desired by the Webb interests as a violation of public rights. The granting of a franchise in which the Dumbarton bridge would be excluded was what was opposed by Ross. Later on in the proceedings Ross said that if the franchise were granted with the clause that the county would have to purchase the Webb bridge first, that he would fight it in the courts.

McCordie, attorney for the Webb interests, replied, "You have always fought it." At this point Frank Towne, president of the Dumbarton Bridge Association, said that the Dumbarton people had never opposed the Webb bridge and that all they wanted was fair play.

The meeting was adjourned at noon and reconvened at 3:30 at which time the franchise was granted, with the objectionable clause removed. The action of granting the franchise was taken too late to be thoroughly covered this week but will be given more consideration in our next issue.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

OPPOSES TELEPHONE TOLLS

An effort is being made by the local Chamber of Commerce and the Chamber of Commerce of Menlo Park to have the telephone tolls between Redwood City and Menlo Park removed. The rate at present between the two towns is five cents.

Prior to the war no such toll was in existence. However, during Federal control of telephone and telegraph systems from August 1, 1918 to August 1, 1919 certain rates were made effective by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company under the authority and direction of the Postmaster General acting on behalf of the Federal government.

At the termination of Federal control on October 1, 1919, the Railroad Commission of the State of California issued its general order No. 57 continuing in effect the rates which were actually in effect at midnight July 31, 1919 until further order of the commission and a proceeding was at once instituted by the commission calling into question the reasonableness of all the rates of the telephone company then in effect.

The Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with the Menlo Park Chamber of Commerce will file a formal complaint with the Railroad Commission as soon as the commission advises the necessary procedure. In the meantime a petition is being circulated to support the complaint and to show the commission the unanimity of opinion in the interested communities.

LOOT DISCOVERED

He has worked with a confederate and it was the confederate who robbed the Otzen home as Wagenhauser does not in any way fit the description of the dapper youth who was seen to leave the Otzen place shortly before the robbery was discovered.

PRELIMINARY PLANS PREPARED FOR PROPOSED PAGEANT

Largest Tent Ever Erected to House Attractive Exhibits of Various Local Products

What promises to be one of the biggest events for the Peninsula, since the World's Fair in 1915, is being planned and is now assured. The Peninsula Pageant of Progress, being arranged by the Peninsula Fair Association, is to be one of the greatest of its kind ever held. The plans of the fair are not yet complete, but as far as now known will be along the general lines outlined below.

As a site for the fair, the committee adopted San Carlos, as the most central for the region covered, which includes all between Mayfield and San Francisco, that is the entire Peninsula. Arrangements have been made for exhibits of horticultural, agricultural, manufactured products and live stock. A tent 100 by 500 feet was at first obtained, but so enthusiastically has the proposition been received that it was soon seen that the tent would not be adequate to the needs of the fair and it was enlarged to 100 by 1,000 feet, thus making it the largest tent ever erected.

A number of special days are being arranged and plans made for a great historical pageant. Each county represented, San Francisco, San Mateo, and Santa Clara will have a special day, there will be a Children's Day, Peninsula Day, American Legion Day and others. In the pageant, Redwood City and South San Francisco will take charge of the 16th century or the time of the Indians in the county. The 17th century will be represented by San Mateo. This is the Romantic period of the county history. The 18th century will be portrayed by Burlingame and will be represented by the Mission era. The 19th century of Golden Age will be in charge of Palo Alto. The 20th or Modern Era will be represented by San Francisco.

Frank K. Towne is president of the Peninsula Fair Association and R. H. K. Smith, Secretary. The following executive committee has been selected: E. B. Hinman, Redwood City; J. E. Newman, Mayfield; G. A. Moore, Palo Alto; J. H. Stubbs, Burlingame; P. R. Thompson, South San Francisco; C. A. Holmoe, San Bruno; C. A. Havis, Montara, and Asa Hull, San Carlos.

A meeting was held last night at Mayfield and committees appointed to take charge of the various branches of the fair. This was to late, however, to be published in the Times-Gazette this week. The committee in charge is meeting with splendid success on all sides and from all indications the fair will be one long to be remembered. The proceeds will be used as an advertising fund for the counties involved.

The meeting was held in the Foresters hall and there was a large number of visitors from neighboring parlors, who expressed great pleasure at the success of the meeting. At the close of the work a banquet was prepared at which many good things were presented and enjoyed. The meal was followed by a number of witty and interesting after-dinner talks.

THE WOMEN'S CITY CLUB

WOMEN'S SERVICE

The women of San Mateo county who rendered war service through the Defender's Club and other activities of the National League for Women's Service are rallying to the big peace-time effort of this organization which has taken the form of a Women's City Club to be established in San Francisco.

The San Mateo group is organizing a meeting for the afternoon of February 14th in the San Mateo Woman's Club at which plans for participation in the Women's City Club project will be discussed. Leaders in the undertaking will outline the plans for the club and give an accounting of the progress to date.

The Women's City Club will be modeled along the lines of similar organizations in the east. It will serve the functions of a big democratic center for women's activities and will seek to bring together women of all groups. There will be but one class of membership with equal privileges for all.

Through the method of financing worked out it will be possible for the League to maintain its present nominal membership dues of $6 a year, and yet give in return for this all of the privileges and facilities that are to be had in the most expensive and exclusive clubs anywhere.

Since the organization of the National League in 1917 there have been identified with it some 6,000 or more women and it is the desire of the leaders to place behind the present effort all of those who have served in the past.

The San Mateo committee consists of Mesdames John Johns, Willis Polk, T. A. Driscoll, P. B. Loomis and Howard Park. Mrs. David E. Graham, chairman for Redwood City and Mrs. Perry Eyre for Menlo Park.

The Junior mid-year dance given by the Junior class of Sequoia High School at the Woman's Club house last Saturday night was a most enjoyable affair. A large crowd participated and as the music was at that could be desired everyone in attendance had a good time.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Monday will be Abraham Lincoln's birthday. A large part of the United States will observe the day in some manner. Here in California the law specifies that every public school in the state must hold exercises commemorative of this great American.

Henry W. Grady said of Lincoln, "He comprehended within himself all the strength and gentleness, all the majesty and grace of the Republic, in that he was an American." That was the secret of Lincoln's greatness. He was just an American who believed in American laws and American ideals. If we can teach our boys and girls to be good, loyal Americans we need have no fear for the future of our Commonwealth.

JULIUS KAHN

Julius Kahn, the veteran San Francisco Congressman, has arrived at his home from Washington quite ill as a result of his arduous duties as chairman of the Military Committee of the house. For the past twenty-five years he has represented the Fourth Congressional district faithfully and well, giving his strength and energies and ability to the cause of his constituents. So well has he represented his district that the people elect him every two years without opposition. This splendid recognition of his work goes to show how well he is appreciated by the voters.

Needed rest and California sunshine will restore the noted Congressman to health so that when the next session opens in December he will be in good trim to again battle for the people of his beloved city.

THE SAN MATEO CAR LINE

The people of San Mateo are agitating the proposition of continuing the San Mateo street car line as far as the Homestead and perhaps as far as Beresford. The United Railroad officials are willing provided certain conditions are met, to make the extension. The street car line, more than any other agency, built up the territory from San Mateo north to the San Francisco line. If the extension is made, the Homestead district and Beresford will soon catch up to Burlingame in population.

The question we would like to raise here is, "Why doesn't the Chamber of Commerce of Redwood City get busy and have the line extended all the way to Redwood City?" Our people would welcome activity of this kind from the Chamber of Commerce and its secretary. Here's hoping they will get busy.

BUDGETS AND SCHOOLS

Just at present there is a great deal of agitation concerning the governor's budget and the public school system. The governor has made some tremendous cuts. State Superintendent of Schools, Will C. Wood, says that the efficiency of the system will be seriously impaired if the governor persists in demanding the cuts in the required appropriations. The whole world points to the California School System as the best in the world. It cannot be kept in first place if it hasn't sufficient funds.

Only the best should be good enough for our boys and girls and we hope that the governor may see the light and give the school department the money that is needed to keep it in first place.

Good schools are good advertisements for any section of the country.

BLUNDERING BALDWIN

The London interview given by Mr. Stanley Baldwin, Chancellor of the British Exchequer and chairman of the British commission for settlement of the debt to the United States, is one of the most remarkable documents that has ever appeared in correspondence between friendly nations. He was unable to persuade the American Foreign Debt Commission to agree to his terms of two per cent interest on the British debt, with final payment postponed about 60 years, and thereupon launched into a criticism of the American Congress that had seen fit to limit the discretion of the American commission to a minimum rate of 4-14 per cent and a maximum period of 25 years.

"The settlement of the debt in America," said Mr. Baldwin, is in the hands of politicians (meaning Congress.) They have men of our way of thinking in the Eastern States, but that does not cut any ice at all with regard to the other parts of America. If you look at the Senate you will find that the majority of the members come from the agricultural and pastoral communities, and they do not realize the existing position with regard to the meaning of the international debt. The bulk of the people in America have no acquaintance with it. The people in the West merely sell wheat and hogs and other produce and take no further interest in connection with the international debt."

Mr. Baldwin appears to forget that the 'politicians' of Congress responded to the pleadings of the allies when the loans were authorized, and that the reasons advanced by Mr. Balfour when he came over here and asked for the money not only 'cut some ice' with the people of the Eastern states but also with the wheat and hog raisers of the West. People who are engaged in agricultural and pastoral occupations know the meaning of a promissory note quite as well as professional financiers; in fact largely because of the huge debt owed this country by Great Britain and the other allies, our farmers are burdened with more mortgages than any other class of our citizens.

MRS. F. WENTWORTH, WINNER IN TIMES-GAZETTE TRAVEL CLUB, WRITES OF HER TRIP TO THE ISLANDS

Mrs. F. Wentworth who left Redwood City two weeks ago for Honolulu on the Times-Gazette Travel Club trip, arrived safely at her destination and soon after reaching Hawaii, wrote the following letter:

Honolulu, T. H., Jan 30, 1923.
Mr. O'Keefe,
Redwood City, California.

Dear Friend:

To begin, I must first tell you of the trip across the ocean. Left San Francisco at 2:30 p. m. and began our long voyage. When only about two hours out at sea the ship began to roll like a cradle and as soon as I got my things straightened, in my state room I went up on deck to find passengers walking up and down the promenade deck. I sat down in my stateroom chair for a few minutes, but soon found out I'd better join the rest.

I kept up until dinner time and went to the dining room fully expecting to enjoy a good meal. I ate my dinner all right, but I had a hurry call to my state room only to be relieved of my perfectly good dinner. Well that was the beginning of the end for me. When I got to my state room I couldn't get out again. Things felt funny to me and all that night the sea was rough and got more so into the night.

I was rocked in my bed like a baby in its cradle, but when I heard things falling down and crockery smashing all over the ship, I got very nervous. About 2 a. m. was the limit when I was thrown out of my bed, and I thought my time had come, and that I would never see Honolulu.

No one slept that night and scarcely any one was on deck the next day. Oh how I wanted to get up, but it was better to lie in my bed. About 2 p. m. that day I made a mad effort, and succeeded in getting dressed and on deck. After that I felt better and I didn't sick any more, although I found it very necessary to keep walking.

I was a regular sailor from then on and rather enjoyed the roughness and was glad of the experience. There was a very nice crowd on board and we had a nice time, at least all those who could enjoy it.

Arrived at Honolulu at 7:30 a. m. on Monday. I took a taxi and went to the Sea Side Hotel, 3 miles from the city, and located right on the beach where you can watch the bathers and the surf riders while you dine. The hotel is made up of cottages, and the gardens surrounding it form a beautiful picture. All colored shrubbery and trees and ferns that grow to be immense size. The flowers and their colorings are beyond my description. In front of the cottages is a coconut grove a great many years old I should imagine, and full of coconuts.

The birds are so plentiful around here and with their chatter and noise you can hardly hear anything else. The Minor birds are especially numerous and they chatter half the night. They nest in the coconut trees and in the shrubbery around close, so I get the full benefit of the noise.

I have been on several drives so far, my first being to Paoli; wonderful does not half express it.

I think I'd like to live here. They have fine school buildings here and it looks so strange to see the children going to school with their bare feet and legs. Most of the natives go barefooted.

This is only an outline of what has come under my observation and to tell it all in a small space would be difficult.

I have found friends here who are ready to show strangers the sights of interest and treat one royally. I wish all the people in Redwood City who care to travel to make Honolulu on your trip.

A word about the weather. We left San Francisco in the rain and arrived here in a shower. Yesterday was a perfect day but today it is stormy but not cold.

You don't seem to mind it here in the tropics. They tell me that they had a very heavy storm the week before I arrived. While riding around I could see huge trees uprooted and places like lakes where the water had not dried up.

Good car service. One can drive a good number of miles for 5 cent fare. I have not been around the city as yet to tell much about the business section. My trips have been out in the country.

I don't know I will get to see the volcano or not. It is on the island of Hilo and an expensive trip which will take more than a day. It is not very active now and one would have to remain there for several days to watch for an eruption.

Give my regards to Redwood City and hope to see you before long.

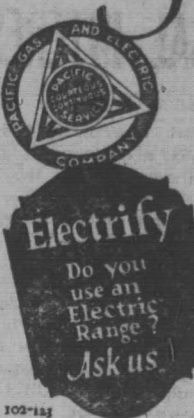

Very sincerely,
MRS. WENTWORTH

Mrs. Wentworth is the second of the winners of the Times-Gazette's prizes to take advantage of the splendid opportunity to travel offered by this paper during its recent subscription campaign. Miss Shelley, winner of the trip to Los Angeles having taken her trip some time ago.

MIGRATION AND SPREAD OF INSECTS

The ways of insects, or at least of many of them, are past finding out. We may study their lives, dissect their bodies, classify them, and know many of their habits, but what moves them to do many things we can not imagine. We call it instinct, and that it probably is, for most of them perform certain actions as well when they are first hatched as they ever will, and they do as their progenitors have done as far back as we can trace them. But the question arises why has this instinct been developed? Why does the bee store honey for instance, and why or how did it drop on the hexagonal form of cell for its preservation, for the hexagonal is the best of all shapes for its uses and the most economical of material. Then again these cells are exactly the right size for retaining the honey, and if they were larger, the contents would not be retained but would run out.

Then, among some of the ants, we have honey receptacles of an entirely different character, nothing other than the bodies of certain selected members of the colony. These are filled with honey by other members until their bodies are perfectly full and transparent, a perfect globe of honey. When they are filled up, they are stored away for winter use, and so remain until wanted. When food is scarce, these storehouse ants are approached by the hungry members of the colony and they yield their honey to them. And so, all through the great insect world there are strange things, the origin of and the reason for which are like Lord Dunsany's count. "Some of those things which no feller can ever find out."

The migration and spread of insects can be placed among this class of conundrums. Take the large milkweed butterfly, or as it is often called the monarch butterfly (Anaxia floppipes), for instance. These will often be seen in flight during the greater part of the year, and nearly always their drift is west, and until stopped by or absorbed in the ocean. We have found these butterflies hovering by millions in trees growing close to the ocean, having steadily winged their way in that direction from all points. What instinct drives them west we do not know.

So it often happens that for some cause great flights of butterflies will take place, and these insects will appear in swarms of millions, all flying in one general direction, and keeping up their unbroken flight day after day, to finally disappear and perhaps not to be seen again in the same locality for years. A few years since we had a flight of Thistle butterflies which covered a great part of the state. There was a continuous ribbon of these beautiful insects, many miles in length and several miles in width; they followed the hills principally and their numbers were endless. They were several days passing a given point, and their direction was southwest. Great fears were expressed by many for the great plague of caterpillars that was to be expected from such a swarm the next season. But that was the end of potato growers of the whole United States, east of the Rocky Mountains, and has not been numerous. But it has never come west. In all the years it has been known in the East as a destructive pest, we do not think a specimen has ever been found on the western slope. Why this insect should travel East and to explain.

Now, why should one insect travel west, another east and another in all directions; why should one spread so rapidly as to cover the whole land in a few years, while another is still confined to a comparatively small territory, in short, why should insects do many of the unaccountable things that they do at all? We will call it instinct and let it go at that, it will save a lot of thinking and is such an easy solution of a difficult proposition.

Our common white cabbage butterfly (Pieris Rapae), is a marked example of the steady and sure advance of a destructive insect. It is a native of southern Europe, where it is as much of a pest as it is now with us, and it is all over North America at the present time. It is this that produces the smooth green caterpillars that are so destructive to our cabbages, cauliflowers and others of the cabbage family, and which also attacks our alfalfa fields in swarms. Often these caterpillars will be seen swarming over an alfalfa field of a cabbage patch, like a snowstorm, so numerous are they.

The first knowledge we have of this insect is from Canada, where it is reported to have been introduced into Montreal in 1868 on a shipment of cabbage from the Mediterranean. The movements of this pest have been recorded and its steady advance year after year has been watched. At first it was few in numbers and its area was confined to the immediate vicinity where it was first introduced. In a few years it had crossed the boundary line and appeared in some of the cabbage patches on this side; later it had advanced into the New England States and was reported to the west and in Ohio. With its constantly widening area its spread became more rapid, until the whole country was involved; it reached the Pacific Coast last, some time in the seventies, we believe, but it is here in full force and may be counted among the more destructive of our insect pests.

The main remedy consists of some one of the arsenical preparations, usually Paris green. This, of course, is not practicable in a large alfalfa field, and not usually to be recommended in other cases. If the plants are attacked while they are young, it may be safely used, as the outside leaves are not used for eating, and while the wash may not at any time be strong enough to be poisonous in food, yet most people object to an arsenical diet even in limited quantities. Freythrum powder or hellebore can be applied to the cabbage either as a spray or in powdered form. As a wash, use one ounce to a gallon of water, and used as a dust spray, it should be mixed with four parts of air-slaked lime or flour and dusted on the plants through a cheese-cloth bag. This remedy is also recommended for other cabbage pests of like character.

The Colorado potato beetle is another example of the peculiarity of insect migration. This is a native insect, its original habitat was in the higher Rocky Mountain regions where its host plant was one of the native solanums. With the introduction of our cultivated potato it found a more choice food plant—one more to its liking, and while it did not altogether abandon its original host, it flocked to the new one. With abundant and choice food it increased in enormous numbers. From the Rocky Mountains it spread rapidly to the East, through Nebraska and Kansas, and then all over the Mississippi valley, and finally, reached the plague of caterpillars that was to be expected from such a swarm the next season. But that was the end of potato growers of the whole United States, east of the Rocky Mountains, and has not been numerous. But it has never come west. In all the years it has been known in the East as a destructive pest, we do not think a specimen has ever been found on the western slope. Why this insect should travel East and to explain.

We will call it instinct and let it go at that, it will save a lot of thinking and is such an easy solution of a difficult proposition.

NEWS OF MENLO PARK

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Elizabeth McGee of Oakland and Paul Stewart of San Diego. The news was revealed at a bridge tea given Saturday at the Menlo Park Country Club by Miss Frances Merrill, granddaughter of Mrs. John F. Merrill.

Miss McGee is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McGee, formerly of San Diego, and attended Stanford, where she belongs to Delta Gamma sorority. Her fiancé was graduated from Stanford last year and is a Phi Delta Theta.

One hundred Girl Scouts from Palo Alto, Mayfield and Menlo Park took part in a field day at the Isolation Hospital, back of the university campus, Saturday. Thirty mothers, Scout Council members, captains and leaders participated in the good time.

The morning was devoted to invigilation of the scouts and their captains with the Tenderfoot pins. After luncheon was cooked and eaten competitive relay races were held and Scout stunts and songs were given. A "treasure hunt" completed the afternoon's fun.

The Mayfield troop of Girl Scouts has re-organized and is now meeting regularly under the direction of Mrs. Sidney Cuthbertson. This is the tenth troop in the community.

Mrs. Margaret L. West, a respected and admired pioneer of California passed away at her home here last Saturday. Her death resulted from an accident in which she was severely burned some time ago. She enjoyed robust health up until the time of the accident. Mrs. West was a native of Lorraine, France, aged 92 years and six months. She came to California via the Isthmus at an early age. In the early '80s she was married to Mr. West by the late Arch Bishop Alamy. In her day she was the belle of San Francisco, a leader of society, and was accounted to most beautiful woman in the city. Her husband, who came to San Francisco in one of his grandfather's ships in 1849, was a prominent bond and stock broker in the early days. He was interested in other enterprises, being responsible for the construction of many of the church buildings erected in the early days in San Francisco. The three daughters of Mrs. West, Mrs. McDonald, Mrs. Sangor Pullman and Mrs. George Pullman who survive her, are noted beauties. The three West sisters were known for their calm and striking beauty, having inherited those gifts from their mother. Mrs. West has resided in Menlo Park with her daughters since 1902, always enjoying the very best of health. The funeral took place from the Church of the Nativity on Monday morning last.

Mr. J. J. Harcom who recently disposed of all of his property interests in San Francisco, is erecting a home on Valparaiso avenue. Mr. Harcom is delighted with this section and is already one of Menlo's strongest boosters. He was here during the week trying to rent a place where he may reside until his home is completed.

RUNNYMEDE NOTES

A card party given by the P. T. A. will be held in the new auditorium Saturday evening of this week, and an invitation is extended to the general public to attend. Tickets are on sale for 25 cents. After the game refreshments of cake and coffee will be served.

The Woman's Club at their first meeting in the new auditorium had a large attendance. A large cake decorated for the occasion by Mrs. John Burger and her mother, Mrs. Barron was on display to be served later to the club during the social hour, and a gavel was presented to the club by Victor Hugo. Business of importance to the club was taken care of during the session, after which the program of the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. B. Crosby, which was greatly enjoyed.

"The Trovatore and The Old Oaken Bucket, two piano solos, were played by Maxine Anderson. A Dutch love song in costume was sung by the Misses Ruth and Leah Harris followed by an address by J. R. Oertel of Stanford University on "What California is doing for Education."

Refreshments of cake and coffee and a social time followed. The hostesses for the next meeting will be Mesdames C. Cairns, R. Dunn, pace, Ella Epperson, B. Crosby and A. Deane. Six new members were added: Miss Wilkins, Mesdames F. Workman, Strankey, Amberg, Harding and Duke.

The literary committee for the 4th Saturday in February are rehearsing for a play to be given in the new auditorium.

The poultry meeting Tuesday evening was not largely attended and a very interesting talk was missed by those absent. J. T. Newton of the University of California, was the speaker and his address was along practical work and instructive to those interested in poultry raising.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Edwards and son of Payette, Idaho, were guests at the Frank Crowther home Sunday, enroute to Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Marsal of Reno, Nevada, cousins of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Lam and Mrs. McNeely, an aunt, visited at the Lam home Saturday.

Miss Mabel Crosby has accepted a position in the San Benito county schools and left Sunday to take up her new duties.

WOODSIDE CHIRPS

James J. Egan, whose summer home is at the "Old Shina Place," has left for a business trip to South America. He will be gone for several months.

Mrs. Leonine von Savoye gave a luncheon party to several of her Woodside friends on Wednesday.

James O'Donnell, (our jovial Jim) has bought a house and lot at Burlingame. There is no relationship of continuity between them, but Jim says that's all right, he will either move the house onto the lot or the lot onto the house.

There was considerable snow-balling in Woodside on Sunday. Not that snow fell here on that day, but quantities of it were brought down from the ridge on the running boards of cars coming over from La Honda.

Grover Newman was here on Wednesday. It is rumored that he is about to return from the southland and build a home on the property that he recently acquired on the Highway.

The school boys' spring gardens are getting well under way, the peas and onions making a fine showing. The competition is fair to be keener this year than last.

Those of us who are old enough to remember the time when children were respectful to their elders and submissive to authority, are disturbed at times over the lack of reverence displayed by the youth of the present day. Perhaps it is not all so bad as we fear. For example, I read in a recent issue of the story of a young boy who met his death upon the burning deck of a ship rather than display his father's command to stay when he was told to do so. He was bearing his own reaction to the same story, in my childhood, I unconsciously expected the same reaction on this occasion.

I was shocked and hurt to hear the boy reply:

"Say, Dad, that boy was a nut. How could he think that his father would want him to stay there and burn to death?"

"If it is I," I said to myself, "the lack of reverence in the youth of today, and an inability to appreciate nobility of action."

I pondered over it a while and decided to try another test. So I read to the boy the story of John Maynard, the steamboat pilot, who, to save the passengers on his burning ship, met death at the pilot wheel. This time there was a sigh, a glimmer of the eye, and the simple remark, "What was a noble man."

Don't that partly tell the story? Isn't there a distinction to be made between a blind obedience and a determined uprising to meet a recognized duty?

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph La Shone of Fiskdale, Mass., were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. Blackington.

ESTABLISHED IN 1833
Cleaning Without Odor by the F. Thomas Process

Our many years of experience has taught us that it is impossible to do perfect cleaning with cheap, inferior methods. That is why we found it necessary to invest nearly $500,000 in the equipment of a plant and the establishment of an expert organization to do the quality of work demanded by our customers.

With the "F. Thomas Process" we not only remove every particle of dirt but we return your garments without that usual disagreeable smell of gasoline. Every drop of gasoline we use in cleaning is reduced and very highly refined.

Raw gasoline—the kind that you buy for your automobile—is full of heavy oils and unfit for cleaning fabrics. It is little better than ordinary kerosene and leaves a sticky "gasoline" smell in your clothes.

NATIONAL BAY STATE SHOE COMPANY
295 Broadway, New York

ESTABLISHED IN 1833
Cleaning Without Odor by the F. Thomas Process

Our many years of experience has taught us that it is impossible to do perfect cleaning with cheap, inferior methods. That is why we found it necessary to invest nearly $500,000 in the equipment of a plant and the establishment of an expert organization to do the quality of work demanded by our customers.

With the "F. Thomas Process" we not only remove every particle of dirt but we return your garments without that usual disagreeable smell of gasoline. Every drop of gasoline we use in cleaning is reduced and very highly refined.
